

You have the right to receive a “Good Faith Estimate” explaining how much your health care will cost

For patients who do not have health care coverage or choose not to have their insurance carrier billed, pursuant to the law, health care providers need to give an estimate of their bill for health care items and services before those items or services are provided.

- You have the right to receive a Good Faith Estimate for the total expected cost of any health care items or services upon request or when scheduling such items or services. This includes related costs like medical tests, prescription drugs, and equipment.
- If you schedule a health care item or service at least 3 business days in advance, make sure your health care provider or facility gives you a Good Faith Estimate in writing within 1 business day after scheduling. If you schedule a health care item or service at least 10 business days in advance, make sure your health care provider or facility gives you a Good Faith Estimate in writing within 3 business days after scheduling. You can also ask any health care provider or facility for a Good Faith Estimate before you schedule an item or service. If you do, make sure the health care provider or facility gives you a Good Faith Estimate in writing within 3 business days after you ask.
- The Good Faith Estimate is only an estimate for those items and services reasonably expected to be furnished to you based on information known when the estimate was prepared. For primary care practices like PCHP’s who provide family medicine, internal medicine, and pediatric services, it is difficult to provide advanced estimates. Diagnoses and related services are typically not determined until you are examined by one of our practitioners.
- If you receive a bill that is at least $400 more for any provider or facility than your Good Faith Estimate from that provider or facility, you can dispute the bill.
- Make sure to save a copy or picture of your Good Faith Estimate and the bill.
